Fun, Funds, and Fairways!

There is never a shortage of golf tournaments on the Eastern Shore. But a golf tournament that provides competitive play for kids and young adults in order to raise money for local scholarships is a once-a-summer event. If your child is into golf, the 11th Annual Junior Golf Tournament hosted by the Sunrise Rotary Club of Salisbury is the place to be.

On Thursday, August 5th, 2010 at Nutter's Crossing Golf Course in Salisbury, Maryland, approximately 75 golfers from ages 13 through college will take to the course. Players must be enrolled in school or be attending college to participate. Several age categories are available and girls are encouraged to compete.

The monies raised from the tournament provide funds for the Tri-County Athletic Scholarships. Each spring, students are selected to receive a scholarship based on leadership in a varsity sport, financial need, and community service. Over $60,000 has been awarded since the tournament began.

For the $25 entry fee ($30 after July 31st), golfers receive a continental breakfast, a sleeve of golf balls, lunch, a round of golf, and high quality trophies for the winners of each age group. For more information, visit www.sunrisejrgolf.org or contact Maggie Porter at 443.614.9429. After July 31st, please contact Kathy Kiernan at 215.292.4294.

Yet More Fun...!

Young golfers aged 8 to 12 can tee off at their very own Jr. Jr. Golf Championship to take place on Friday, July 16th, 2010 at the Elks Lodge 817 located at 401 Church Hill Avenue, Salisbury, Maryland behind the YMCA. The $15.00 entry fee includes a 9-hole round of golf, cooked lunch, and awards to the 1st, 2nd and 3rd placed golfers in the 10 and under, and 11 and 12 age groups, Boys and Girls. Contact Maggie Porter at 443.614.9429 to sign up for this event.

AND A HISTORY LESSON

ESGM RECEIVES PRAISE FROM SCOTLAND

IN PRAISE OF ESGM

PASSING THE MAGAZINE AROUND IN GOLF'S OWN COUNTRY TO KILMARNOCK (BARASSIE) MEMBERS. ALL PRAISED THE LAYOUT AND CONTENT ESPECIALLY CLUB PRO, GREGOR HOWIE. WELL DONE ESGM!

WWW.KBGC.CO.UK

Kilmarnock Golf Club started in 1887 as the Ossington Golf Club, named after the Hotel where a meeting was held to set up the seven holes at Holmes Farm. Unfortunately, the non-playing members got fed up with the presence of cows and their litter. Finally in 1894 the members made the decision to move to the coast.

With no cows and quick professional design by Prestwick St. Nichols, Golf Club Professional John Allan had 12 holes in a month! John was paid a Guinea (21 shillings) instead of his fee of 12 shillings and six pence.

In 1912, Willie Coombe produced a course of the finest turf and putting surfaces. He was followed by Andrew Duncan who had started in 1920 and was succeeded by his sons Jim and Sam in 1968. Kilmarnock (Barassie) Golf club became an Open Final Qualifying Course in 1973. Peter Allis, doyen of golf TV commentators, qualified there then and subsequently wrote in a golf magazine – "All budding Greenkeepers should be made to go to Barassie for a week, so that they will see how 18 holes can be maintained to perfection by only three men."

Countless visitors, professional and amateur have found Barassie to their delight and today, with 27 holes, it can give an even greater pleasure to members and visitors alike.

OFFICIAL AWARDS SUPPLIER OF THE ESGM TOUR ON THE SHORE

PRO CHALLENGE

BEN TILLEY & ROB McDONALD

This is the 15th year of the Pro Challenge. The format and the names have changed over the years, but the common theme has not. It gives the Pro and his Assistant time together away from work to compete, network with other professionals, and grow the game of golf. We have four clubs who are past champions and a couple new clubs that added to the mix this year. There are 11 teams. 6 make the playoffs. The top two point earners in the regular season automatically advance to the final four. There are 4 points you can win each match. 1 pt for the front 9, 1 pt. for the back 9, 2 pts. for the overall winner of that match. Bobby Vermillion and Endless Golf have been a huge supporter of this event over the years. The players from the championship team will grace the cover of the November/December issue of Eastern Shore Golf Magazine and earn a free trip to compete in the Pro Invitational at the Tour on the Shore Championships at the Bay Creek Resort November 6-7, 2010. The following courses put together a team for this event; The Peninsula, Bayside, Cripple Creek, Heritage Shores, Baywood Greens, The Bay Club, Lighthouse Sound, Glen Riddle, Wild Quail, Ruddo's Golf, and Bear Trap Dunes.

'SALTY' SHOOTS 8 UNDER!

Growing up in PA as the son of the Vice President for Spalding Worldwide placed Salty around some very influential sports icons. Lee Trevino, Johnny Unitas and many others who were on the Spalding Staff were a part of his childhood. Their athletic skill must have rubbed off into Salty's blood because the things Salty has accomplished athletically are unmatched by anyone on the shore. He has excelled in a wide variety of sports. Out of high school, he earned a sponsorship from Pepsi as a Professional Skateboarder then became a Pro Beach Volleyball Champion and owner of the 15 City Molson Pro Beach Volleyball Tour. This former Beach Club Champion is currently a four handicap and has scored three rounds of 8 under par (64), over the years. One of those rounds came while swinging borrowed clubs for the day! Salty has one of those special gifts; whatever he puts his mind to, he can accomplish with great success. He purchased the legendary Endless Summer surf shop in 1983 and also started a clothing line that became the #1 beach volleyball apparel company on the East Coast. In between shooting birdies, catching waves, pulling off sick skate tricks and spiking the volleyball on your head, he produces his own motorcycle lifestyle show called "On the Road". The show runs on the Resort Video Guide twice daily with twelve shows a year. Salty Selt is a dedicated husband to Kelly (10 years) and father to Noah (7).

A TIP FOR JUNIOR GOLFERS

BY BOB AFFELDER, PGA

A great drill for juniors is to hit drivers off of their knees. It sounds a bit odd but the results speak for themselves.

Often times juniors lack the strength in their arms and hands which results in a dominate shoulder swing. When the shoulders dominate the swing the results are often an outside in path or a slice. If this gets too grooved it becomes a difficult habit to break.

Practicing drivers off of their knees makes them swing the club from the inside. In fact, it's the only way they can even contact the ball on their knees. Because the driver is so long, if it is swing from outside in by the golfer on their knees they will hit the ground first and whiff the ball.

Tee up some balls in a line. Get your junior on their knees and position them so the ball is a little forward of center in their stance. Now have them make some practice swings. Within a few swings they will figure out that the only way for them to connect with the ball is to swing the club properly from on the inside path. With just a half dozen swings I have seen every junior start hitting the ball and most of them with a draw.

After they have achieved the correct feel and driven some balls on their knees have them stand up and hit some shots. Repeat the drill as needed to correct the slice. The best part of this drill is that it is fun for them to try and they will be amazed at how easy it is to hit it far and straight.

Melwood PRINCE GEORGE'S COUNTY OPEN

TOMMY GAINNEY WINS MELWOOD PRINCE GEORGE'S COUNTY OPEN

Tommy Gainney fired a final-round 65 at the University of Maryland golf course and emerged from a packed leader board to win the 2010 Melwood Prince George's County Open, his first career title on the Nationwide Tour. Gainney two-putted the final hole for birdie, rolling in a 3-footer, to finish at 17-under-par 267 and win by one over Frank Lickliter II and Jin Park.

For Gainney, 34, the birdie on the final hole may have been the shot of his life. After working on a factory assembly line and other odd jobs Gainney got his first big break in golf in 2005 when he won the Golf Channel reality series, The Big Break.

Though it was his first win on either the PGA or Nationwide Tour and he collected a check for $108,000 he would not have much time to enjoy it. Less than 24 hours later he would travel to Woodmont to try and qualify for the U.S. Open.

Along with the check and trophy Gainney also received a University of Maryland basketball jersey from Maryland head coach Gary Williams.

*"I'm happy," said Gainney.
"It's a feeling that you can't explain.
It will probably take a couple of days to sink in."*

MASTER PROFESSIONAL FRANK LABER, PGA

Master Professional Frank Laber idealizes the principals laid out by the Middle Atlantic Section of the Professional Golfers' Association. His spirit, drive, and unselfish dedication to promoting the game of golf and the PGA professional are undisputed.

This four-time recipient of the Section's Bill Strausbaugh Award (1988, '90, '91, and '95) has dedicated his career to improving the financial stability of the golf professional. Recognizing a need for employment support for MAPGA professionals, Frank played a pro-active role in establishing the position of the PGA's first section Employment Director in 1990. The creation of this position within the section was the foundation for the career services offered and the employment database that is used in the section today. Frank has demonstrated how one man's idea truly can influence a positive change -- not only for a local section, but, in fact, enhance the structure of an entire professional organization and make it more efficient and effective for all of its members. Frank's initiative to establish the position of Employment Director, first on the section level, evolved to what now has been adopted nationally and has impacted the entire structure of the Professional Golfers' Association of America and all of its members! As a result of Frank's inspiration, positive systemic changes have taken place to improve job opportunities, financial equities, and negotiations to enhance the status and lifestyle of today's PGA professional.

Frank Laber believes that along with the honor that comes with being a PGA Head Professional, there also comes a responsibility to mentor others to realize their potential in the profession. He was awarded the section's Horton Smith Trophy in 1987 for his efforts as an educator and has continued over the years to play an important role in the section's education programs. Promoting the game through sharing knowledge, developing human relations skills, improving playing proficiency, and keeping current with education and certification requirements are some of the most important lessons he teaches new apprentices. Frank can proudly reflect on the success of many of his former assistants who were inspired by his methods and continue in the same tradition.

Born in Baltimore, MD, in 1947, the only child of Frank and Eleanor Laber, Frank is well known and respected in the Baltimore/Washington area where he has spent his entire life. He began playing golf as a youngster and was well known at Clifton Park GC and Mt. Pleasant GC. Later, he and his mentor and best friend for the past 20+ years, Coleman Plecker, could often be found at Carroll Park GC. In keeping with the true "Baltimore son" that he is, Frank attended the University of Baltimore.

Frank became a PGA member in 1978 and has a long history of service to the MAPGA, including serving on the section's Membership, Tournament and Employment committees in some capacity since 1982. He was Chairman of the MAPGA Membership Committee in 1984-85, and Chairman of the MAPGA Employment Committee from 1986 - 1995. In 1989, he was elected President of the Northern Chapter, and in 1992-93, he served as Vice President of the Northern Chapter. He has been the Northern Chapter Director-at-Large since 1998. For his years of dedicated service to his fellow professionals and to the Section, Frank was awarded the prestigious MAPGA President's Award in 2001. Frank has also been active on a national level, serving on the PGA Education Committee in 1984-85, and from 1986-91 a member of the PGA Employment Committee. One of Frank's proudest career accomplishments is earning Master Professional status in 1996. Just as in the game of golf, the commitment to achieve this status reflected a challenge to surpass one's own level of mastery; and Frank eagerly accepted the challenge. Another of Frank's challenges was in pursuing his dream to create and own a facility for people of all ages and playing ability to learn, practice, and enjoy the game of golf.

Frank accepted this challenge and realized his dream in 1999. Following 18 years as the Head Golf Professional at Long View GC Frank became the co-owner and manager of Black Horse Golf and Learning Center in Whitehall, MD until retiring to the Eastern Shore in 2008. Frank and his wife of 30 years, Susan, are enjoying life in their new home in Lighthouse Sound; Frank is now an Assistant Golf Professional at Ocean Golf Club as well as a mentor to MAPGA members in the area.

For his unrelenting dedication and countless contributions to the golf profession and to PGA professionals, the MAPGA honored Master Professional Frank J. Laber as MAPGA Golf Professional of the Year Award in 2002. Even with all of his contributions and the many accolades he has received, Frank's philosophy on the game has always been simple. When you practice, always spend more time on your short game: pitching, chipping, and putting.

COACH'S CHALKBOARD

WHAT HIGH SCHOOL GOLFERS SHOULD KNOW

■BY JIM KRALL

For Summer Preparations.

Practice, practice, practice. Make the golf course and range your second home. Hit balls until it hurts. Serious high school golfers can be found on the course almost everyday during the summer. Does that sound like you?

Bayside golf matches are usually played from tees that are closest to 6300 total yards for men. Ladies will always play from the ladies tees in high school. No matter which course you are playing this summer try to play from that distance or more.

Get involved in a junior tour. Summer tours afford young players with experiences in competition that are extremely valuable. In fact, most college recruiters weigh a player's achievements on junior tours more heavily than their high school accomplishments (except for the state tournament).

Play the ball down. If you improve your lie by fluffing your ball up on a tuft of grass you are only hurting yourself. You must learn how to hit shots from bad lies to be the complete competitor. Touching the ball anywhere but the tee and green is a one stroke penalty.

Learn the rules of the game. Get a USGA rulebook and study it. Penalties are assessed during practice rounds, qualifying rounds, and matches for any and all infractions. Ignorance to the rules is not an excuse.

Learn to control your anger. Swearing, club throwing, kicking objects, etc. will not be tolerated at all. Act with maturity and control on and off the course.

Get a physical if you haven't already done so. Physicals are valid in public high school for 365 days. Permission slips, physical forms, emergency forms, etc. will be due before you are permitted to play. Don't wait too long and assume the doctor can see you on short notice.

Don't concentrate on driving as much as your short game. Chipping and putting win tournaments. A good friend of mine put it best when he said, "You have to be better than your opponents in chipping and putting to beat them". you never see long drive champions on tour.

Walk the course when you play. You must have strong legs. Often high school golfers are able to post good scores for their front nine, but many times they tire on the back nine due to weak legs. I see it happen every year during our 18 hole matches. Strong legs help a strong finish.

Don't take golf for granted. It's not a right, it's a privilege. However, any player who does not exhibit respect for the game, the facilities, and the people involved will be dismissed.

You must have control over your bodily functions. You are representing your school and you are a reflection of your coach. You will not embarrass your teammates, coaches, family or yourself.

Enjoy the sport. It is one of the few sports that can be played for a lifetime. Don't let the game control you, you control the game. Everyone has their share of horrible rounds, as well as, awesome ones. You will hit a slump this summer and at other times strike the ball with resounding confidence. Don't give up. Don't be a quitter. It would be a perfect world if everyone could post scores near par. However, that takes a great deal of practice and commitment. If you're not committed to getting better, you're game may never improve. It doesn't happen overnight while your sleeping, or in the ocean on your body board, or in your room on the X Box. It happens on the range, the chipping green, and the golf course.

Remember to always respect and appreciate those who give you the opportunities to play golf. Be thankful to your family and God.

Good Luck in your preparations for the upcoming season. Practice, play, and learn from those golfers whom you respect.

“YOU KNOW THE DRILL”

BY STEVE MENZ

Speed Kills

If you are having difficulty controlling your putt speed here is a good tip that will help you find the perfect speed. When you get to the practice green, put a tee on the green about 10 feet from the fringe. Take 3 balls and putt them with your right hand only (if you are right handed) to the fringe so that the ball just barely crawls onto the edge of the fringe. Go over to them and putt them back to the tee. Putting to the edge of the fringe will simulate the ball dying into the hole. Repeat it a bunch of times and 3 putts will soon be a thing of the past! Now you know the drill!

NOW YOU KNOW THE DRILL!

THE Women's PENINSULA GOLF ASSOCIATION

BY NORMA SPICHER, WPGA TEAM MATCH SECRETARY

The WPGA has many exciting golf tournaments each year. One of the most popular and competitive is the Team Match Tournament, which is played from April through June. Over twenty country clubs from the Delmarva area participate.

The teams are divided into four divisions -- north, south, east, and west. Within each division, clubs compete against their neighboring clubs to win their division's gross or net titles. The division winners play in semi-final matches -- North versus South, East versus West to determine who will compete for the overall Gross and Net Championships.

The finals were held on June 15th at Nutters Crossing Golf Club. The Gross Championship was played between Rehoboth Country Club and Ocean City Golf Club. With only one point difference, Rehoboth prevailed and won the 2010 Gross Championship. The 2010 Net Championship was won by Shawnee Country Club over Chester River Yacht & Country Club.

Ocean City Golf Club who won the South Division. We also won the semi-finals against Prospect Bay.

Salisbury Store offers 50-80% off storewide!

Falling in love can happen anytime and anywhere, even when you're shopping for home furnishings. In fact, it happens a lot to people at THaT* Furniture Store. Some folks visit a friend and admire their unique accent piece, then learn that it was purchased for more than 50 percent below the original price at THaT* Furniture Store in Salisbury. Sometimes people see the commercials on TV or read about the business in other magazines and get a little curious about the new store in the neighborhood that inspires people from as far away as Florida, thinking that "it can't hurt to just look."

While browsing through the spacious yet cozy showroom, suddenly they spot that special item — a beautiful top-grain leather Italian sofa, a dramatic Oriental cabinet, or a hand-painted French provincial table. Maybe they'd seen similar pieces in glossy magazines like Vogue or Architectural Digest, never imagining being able to afford one of their own. Now, instead of admiring it from afar, they can actually feel the fine mahogany and fully appreciate the style and comfort of the buttery soft leather. Best of all, the price tag is well below what they would expect of such a piece. This is because owner Mike Ringer, along with his wife and business partner, Dianne, work with fine-furniture manufacturers worldwide, who also supply nationally known interior designers and chic retail outlets like Crate and Barrel, Pottery Barn, Horchow and Gumps, just to name a few. Each week's selection includes factory close-outs, showroom samples and even unclaimed shipping errors.

Each item in the store arrives courtesy of Mike's cross-country "treasure hunts," where he hand picks many of the pieces for quality, style, value and heirloom-like workmanship. He also keeps a close eye out for the kind of charm and flair people yearn for to reflect their individual style and taste. It takes a lot of effort and dedication, but the Ringers enjoy providing their customers with the excitement of fresh furniture finds every week. It might be easier to have a warehouse full of the same exact pieces you can find in a catalog, in a giant warehouse or on a computer screen. The trouble is then they would be the same pieces you can find in everyone else's home, and not yours alone.

Next time, don't be too surprised when it's your turn to gather kudos as visiting friends admire your home's savvy style. Just tell them that they, too, can fall in love with the quality, selection, and prices, at THaT* Furniture Store!

NICKLAUS[®] DESIGN

There are three courses here on the Eastern Shore designed by golf's greatest legend, Jack Nicklaus. The Peninsula, Bayside Resort and Bay Creek Resort are all home to Jack's legendary and challenging designs. This year is the first year of the Battle of the Jacks, a match play series between 3-twelve member teams consisting of 11 Amateurs and 1 Professional from each club. The format is individual stroke play with handicap, counting 6 of the twelve scores.

TOOLS OF THE TRADE PUTTING UP WITH PUTTERS

I see it day in and day out, players putting with putters that simply do not fit them. I see the toe way up in the air or even the dreaded double chicken wing. They walk into a big box store and start picking up putters to see what feels good. They will try them all finally deciding on a putter that has been greatly reduced and is "such a good deal!" They usually end up with a not-so-name brand, gimmicky putter that will soon become the next item quickly rounding up the dust bunnies in the closet. We have all picked up that one. It's kind of ironic how we seem to make every putt on the store's artificial green. Before you test drive that next flat stick, take a look at your current magic wand. Find a mirror in the house that you can set on the floor. Put it at a point so that you can see how your putter rests at address position. You are checking to see if the putter is relatively flat when you are holding it normally. If it isn't you need to have the lie angle adjusted. Next check your elbows at address position. If your elbows are bent outwards about 90 degrees, you have the ole' double chicken wing. That means the putter is more than likely too long for you. For years the standard length of a putter has been 36". In my 20 some odd years of fitting I have experienced very few people that actually need a putter of that length. That is why our shop at Cripple Creek carries putters mostly from 33" to 35" long. I recommend to have your local pro fit you for your putter or you can go on-line. I think Ping.com has a great static fitting system of putters. Answer the questions honestly and you will have a putter fit for a king, your perfect match. Now if you chose to have your putter adjusted, it can be done. The lie angle is relatively simple to do, but I really don't recommend cutting your putter down. When you make it shorter it tends to throw off the balance of the putter. Go get yourself fit and you will find your golf equivalent to your soul-mate. These two things are pivotal to making better putts: keep your head steady and hit the putter on the sweet spot. While keeping your head steady is completely up to you, hitting the sweet spot on the putter is a piece of cake when the putter actually fits you properly. So don't put up with that putter just because you like the way it feels sometimes. Get the putter fit for you. You will hit the sweet spot more and your confidence will go through the roof!

DENTIST

A man and his wife walk into a dentist's office. The man said to the dentist, "doctor, I'm in a big hurry, I have three buddies sitting out in my car waiting for us to play golf. So forget about the anesthetic and just pull the tooth and be done with it. I don't have time for the anesthetic to work." The doctor thought to himself, my goodness, this is a very brave man, asking me to pull his tooth without anything to kill the pain. So the dentist asked him, "which tooth is it sir?" The man turned to his wife and said, "open your mouth, honey, and show the dentist which tooth hurts".

Why we play...

This statement can be answered in many ways. Some golfers may take in the scenery or maybe want the peace and quiet golf provides. Others may like the feeling of getting nervous over a 3 foot putt for a little jingle or maybe it's having to make par on the last hole to break 80 for the first time. Lord knows we have all lay in our beds at night and played back each shot in our head. Whatever the reason, one should only play golf with one purpose only and that is enjoyment! Over the years I have played with golfers of all ages, skill levels and personalities and it's amazing how much you can learn about a person on a golf course. Who wants to spend 4 hours with someone who no matter what can't find a way to enjoy themselves on the golf course? I can't tell you how many times I've been asked "Bobby what's the best course or your favorite course to play? I would usually respond, "You know, I really don't have a favorite course". Some people would say back to me, "you just don't want to offend anyone" and I would respond, "No I really don't have a favorite course". I finally figured out why. For me it's not about where I play it's more about who I play with. The one thing I can say is good company trumps a great golf course every time. I'm a little spoiled to say the least with being able to play so many quality courses over the years but I would rather pick my foursome and I will let you pick the course. So the next time you tee it up no matter how you play, do yourself and everyone else in your foursome a favor, enjoy the day!

Next to all our wonderful supporters, this is the best part of my job... NEW TOYS. Usually we don't see new products come out in June, but this summer we have some exciting items to showcase. The first is the new Skycaddie SGX gps system. It features a durable, sleek design with a beautiful 3 inch, high resolution screen that is visible even in the brightest sunlight with one handed operation for more precise positioning. The SGX has a high performance GPS engine for an ultra fast satellite acquisition that locks quickly onto more satellites and stays locked... arguably the best satellite technology in this category. Up to 30,000 courses are mapped extensively and pre-loaded. Distances to hazards, carries, and layups are displayed automatically as you move down the course. The Intelligreen Pro feature, only available with Skycaddie, adds distances to major green contours, false fronts, front carry and back distances or any other point on the green from your angle of attack. The SGX can measure any shot and allow you to track your stats and keep score. My handicap is getting lower just talking about it. The SGX is so much more than just the #1 rangefinder in golf. Tour players don't use yardage books derived from satellite images or video flyovers and neither should you.

This next product has me as excited as the first... the Corza GHOST by Taylormade. Yes, Ghost, as in white. That's right a white putter. I wasn't looking to change putters, but when Taylormade showed me the Ghost I couldn't resist. The white head compliments the ball and also stands out easily against the green grass so you don't have to strain to see the top line. The three black lines on the crown give further alignment support and you'll be amazed at how easy it is to tell where the face is aiming. Lighter than expected, balanced very well, smooth and effortless. With the patented Anti-skid Groove System Insert to promote a more consistent forward roll, you'll be making more putts (or taking fewer putts, depending on how you look at it). Move over Casper, I've got a new friend. Stop by Ruddo's in West OC or Rehoboth Beach to find out more.

DPGA SCHOLARSHIPS

As this issue goes to press, the DPGA Scholarship Committee will be looking at the Scholarship applications and will be announcing the new recipients in the next issue.

DPGA JUNIOR TOURNAMENTS

The DPGA will be sponsoring 5 junior golf tournaments this year. These tournaments are open to any junior as long as they meet the age requirements. Each junior who plays in these tournaments will earn points. The 4 leading pint earners in each age group will be invited to play in the Tournament of Champions at Cripple Creek Golf Club on the 16th of August. The age brackets will be 10-11, 12-13, 14-15, & 16-17.

JUNIOR TOURNAMENT SCHEDULE

Caroline Country Club	July 12	9:20am	410-479-1425
Ocean City	July 13	9:00am	410-641-1779
Sussex Pines	July 22	12:00pm	302-856-3363
Wild Quail	July 26	8:00am	302-697-4653
Green Hill	August 2	10:00am	410-546-1605

The fee for each tournament will be $15 per person. Entry forms for the tournaments can be found at any participating DPGA club or on the DPGA website at <http://home.comcast.net/~dpga-golf>

This year's DPGA Pro-Junior Tournament was held at Nutters Crossing on June 28th. Results will be posted in the next issue.

DPGA GOLF TOURNAMENTS

The DPGA Amateur Tournament & DPGA Club Amateur Tournament will be held at Sussex Pines Country Club on July 31/ August 1. The tournament is open to any DPGA club members. There will be two flights consisting of the Championship flight for players with handicaps 6 or lower and the Net Flight for players with handicaps higher than 6. Maximum handicap allowed will be 18. Last years winners were Matt Briggs from Nutters Crossing for individual and Nutters Crossing for the Club Championship.

The DPGA Senior Championship will be held at Hog Neck Golf Club on September 10th. The tournament is open to any DPGA club members who are 50 or older. There will be gross and net prizes for each flight which will be determined by age brackets. Last year's winner were Jere Lynch with 1st net and Ford Schumann with 1st gross.

More information on these tournaments will be available at any DPGA club or on the DPGA website at <http://home.comcast.net/~dpga-golf>

"When we first met, Jeff asked me to teach him how to speak Spanish and I asked him to teach me how to golf. Three years later I can say that his Spanish is just about as good as my golf!"

Dean, a career paramedic at the Berlin Fire Company and volunteer at the Mt. Vernon Volunteer Fire Company, has been an avid golfer since childhood. At the time they met he had worked his handicap down into the single digits, was the Head Staff Writer for the Eastern Shore Golf Magazine, and was playing regularly in the ESGM Tour on the Shore golf tournaments.

"We spent a lot of time together practicing golf," explained Dean. "That gave us time to become friends. We rely on that trust every day to make our business grow. We want EMSpañol to be regarded as the definitive EMS language translation guide, period. So many products don't live up to their hype. The positive response we are getting from the field tells us we accomplished our goal. It's a wonderful feeling."

Selling books from the trunks of their cars, Dean and Castañares sold more than 1,000 copies of EMSpañol in the first two months. That caught the eye of a large, well-respected EMS supply distributor, Southeastern Emergency Equipment, of Wake Forest, North Carolina. Southeastern Emergency Equipment is now the exclusive distributor of EMSpañol in a territory that covers all of the eastern United States, Louisiana, Texas and Minnesota, as well as Internet sales and trade shows.

To date, EMSpañol has sold more than 2,500 copies.

"In a way, we're overwhelmed by the response," said Castañares, an Argentine-born American citizen. "But in another way we built the business to succeed. It took us three years to become an overnight success. People's lives are on the line and our names are on those books. We felt that burden as we created EMSpañol."

Dean agreed and added, "Beyond the obvious thrill of helping patients and providers, I've seen the most remarkable change happening in the attitudes of people using our books. It's subtle, but I'm watching EMS providers suddenly practicing Spanish together. Hispanic patients are becoming more accessible to them. I mean, they're making dirty jokes out of EMSpañol phrases, but they're also getting excited about their new skills."

The full system consists of EMSpañol: Ambulance Edition, EMSpañol: Pocket Edition, and EMSpañol: Refusal of Care Forms for English or Spanish Speaking Patients. An educational video based on the EMSpañol method is currently in production and should be available by Fall 2010.

"With support from Delaware Tech's Entrepreneurship Technology program (www.dtcc.edu), Patricia Rivera of the bilingual PR firm BilCom Group (www.bilcomgroup.com) and VizionSound Studios of Salisbury (www.bigvizion.com) they are also making an instructional video, due out in Fall 2010."

Spectacular CLUBHOUSE OPENS AT BAYSIDE RESORT

The 7300 square foot clubhouse with a 22 foot high cathedral ceiling leading to a glass cupola includes a fully outfitted pro shop, multiple great room-style open spaces for large-scale entertaining and The Cove Bar & Grill. The Cove is complete with one of the area's more significant bars featuring multiple flat screen TVs perfect for watching the sporting event of the day and 120 feet of glass providing breathtaking views of the golf course and community. Outside the clubhouse boasts a spectacular deck overlooking the pond and fountain at the 18th green and large fire pit to add a little heat to any event.

"This is a tremendous addition to our magnificent community and beautiful Jack Nicklaus Signature Golf Course", said Tom Halverstadt, Sr. Vice President for The Carl M. Freeman Companies. "It's only natural that a golf course this beautiful would have a first class, architecturally stunning clubhouse facility and we think we've delivered that to our homeowners, members and guest."

Bayside currently features more than 500 residential homes and offers resort amenities including a Jack Nicklaus Signature Golf Course, two community pools, a carousel park, recreational trails, tennis complex, and outdoor stage for performances and much more. MINSOO SOH

Minsoo is originally from South Korea. He attended high school in Vancouver, British Columbia, Canada. Minsoo picked up golf during his senior year of high school in 2006. He decided he wanted a career in the golf industry and enrolled in Camosun College, one of the two PGM colleges in Canada. The weather was not good in Canada so Minsoo brought his "American Dream" to the United States. Minsoo moved to San Diego and enrolled in The San Diego Golf Academy (SDGA), known today as

The Golf Academy of America. While at the SDGA, Minsoo was recognized as the most improved student having passed his PGA Playing Ability Test only one year after picking up the game. Minsoo earned certificates in teaching from the United States Golf Teachers Federation, golf fitness from the Titleist Performance Institute, and golf club repair from Henry Griffiths. Minsoo is self proclaimed as having a huge passion for the game of golf.

Minsoo realized he had to pursue his education and attain membership in the PGA of America. "I could have chosen to go to a different college, but UMES had everything that I was looking for. I thought I would have a great advantage if my education and background related to golf. I wish I started playing golf when I was young, but I'm happy that I picked up the game of golf. I'm really happy that I will be the part of the history of UMES."

WHALE RESCUE ON HOLE #6

STORY COURTESY OF RUARK GOLF

A group from New Jersey was playing at Lighthouse Sound Golf Course, when one of the golfers was looking back over the water enjoying the view from the sixth tee box and saw what he thought was the fin of a surf board turned upside down below the rocks. He walked back and saw that it was, in fact, what we now know was a GERVAIS BEAKED WHALE that was stuck on a sand bar. Jeff Gibson of New Jersey went into the water (fully clothed, with golf shoes on) and tried to push the whale off of the beach.

Jeff literally had his arms wrapped around the whale's mid section pushing for about ten minutes. He was able to free it and it swam away. There were three other fins in the water circling, seemingly waiting for their friend. Jeff then climbed out of the water to wild applause, stepped to the tee and ripped a 280-yard drive in soaking wet clothes and shoes.

GOLF CLUB

RHYTHM & BALANCE

BY ROB McDONALD

There is a gentleman who belongs to a club where I used to work who has what some would call a serious flaw to his swing. A reverse spine tilt at the top of the swing, when your spine is angled towards the target, can cause rather unfavorable golf shots. This gentleman however, carries a 4 handicap. The low handicap comes from his consistently solid contact and from the fact that he cheats a bit on the greens. We'll touch on that a little later.

The reason he has consistently solid contact while swinging with a considerable flaw to his technique is due to his wonderfully smooth rhythm. Whether he is hitting a driver, long iron or short shot, his rhythm is always smooth.

You can have excellent technique, but if your rhythm is off you will hit poor shots. If your technique is somewhat flawed, but you have good rhythm and balance you can play well. Focusing on rhythm is a swing thought you can use to take you around the course with consistency. As I mentioned in a previous article, your focus must be on the process, not the result. Rhythm is a major part of the process.

If your balance is off, it's very difficult to keep smooth rhythm. Your pace will tend to quicken and muscles will tighten. So rhythm and balance are tied very closely together. Just as it is with music, rhythm is timing or sequencing at pace that allows you to hit the proper notes at the appropriate time. One of the first things you learn in music is to work on the scales slowly, getting the order right. As you get better, you can bring the pace up and add some rhythm and it will begin to sound like music.

You must work on your golf sequencing the same way. Start out slowly, getting your sequencing right.

The first key to good rhythm is balance. You should feel that your balance point is just behind the balls of your feet. As you swing, your weight may move laterally but the balance point should remain the same until your rotation pulls your right heel from the ground. You should not feel the balance point move between the toes and heel.

To get a feel for this, set your balance point behind the balls of the feet, close your eyes and make a few swings feeling the balance point remain in its original position. Closing your eyes really forces you to feel your balance through the swing. Next, still feeling your balance, make some easy "tossing speed" swings while focusing on a smooth, balanced motion. See how many in a row you can "toss" to a nearby target.

As you get consistency in your results, move to a target that is just a bit farther.

Then, farther etc. Your goal is to make swings that are balanced and in a rhythm that allows your muscles to stay relatively relaxed. Imagine Ernie Els' swing in your mind. He wasn't born with good rhythm. He developed it.

The second key is tension level. The tension level in your hands and arms will naturally increase as you are coming into the impact zone. If you start out tight, you will get tighter as the swing continues. You want to start your take-away and your forward swing at a pace that allows your tension level to remain somewhat light. If you start too quickly in either direction, you will tighten right away and get tighter from there. For proper tension level, try thinking about holding a young child's hand while crossing the street. You want a firm enough grip so they won't slip out of your hand while being relaxed enough to swing your arms together.

Now back to the gentleman that "cheated" on the greens. While he is quite a good ball striker, the term "Sammie* good" developed around the club. Basically the theory was that if you were within the length of the flagstick from the hole or if you missed your putt but "felt you could have made it", it was good. This is the reason he will never win the club championship. He could post a lot of low scores when playing with his normal group. When the club championship came around and he had to putt out, he was never a threat. He couldn't develop the mindset needed to make putts under pressure. While we all have had those putts that you know you can make but for some reason it didn't go in, take the hit. Write down the actual score. It'll make you batten down the hatches and become a better putter in the long run.

SHORE UP! WITH THE GAME COACH!

CARSON LOVETT, MA, SPORT PSYCHOLOGY

Midsummer on the Shore, The Tour is in gear and everywhere the links are full of action. And at the height of competitive drive during the most critical points within a contest, coaches of beginners and professionals alike are relying on a fundamental and elementary principle as motivation: Just Play and Have Fun. As timeworn and simple as it seems, researchers believe that there is a scientific angle to that prompt. Investigators studying Why We Play have determined that play is a psychological state that allows the player to be into the moment and free of expectations. When in play state the mind is liberated and optimally framed to fully express its talents. In this state, the athlete is connected with pure possibility and the brain is able to exercise its extreme flexibility. It appears that play opens pathways between regions of the brain that may otherwise be disconnected, thereby enhancing creativity. It is this innate behavior that embodies our potential to maximize our abilities, a position supported by a series of studies investigating the effects of play on the performance of adults. The results demonstrated that subjects who played regularly had better memory, improved cognition, felt happier and lived longer than adults that rarely entered the play state. Understanding how to compete while remaining in the psychological state of play is challenging given the complexities of golf. Emphasizing play and all its components as a fundamental aspect of life, and incorporating play into a performance-based regiment may free the golfer to enjoy the process that leads to improvement. And when it is time for competition, the athlete can focus on the essence of what golf is - play.

YOUR PATH TO PAR

BY RICHARD ROBINSON

INSTRUCTOR THE ORIGINAL GOLF SCHOOL

THE BEACH CLUB GOLF LINKS & LINKS AT LIGHTHOUSE SOUND

One of the great things about an Eastern Shore golf experience is the opportunity to experience "links" golf. Courses like Lighthouse Sound, Glen Riddle, Rum Point, Bear Trap, and Hunter's Oak offer outstanding holes representing links design characteristics.

Links golf offers the chance to play the game as originally conceived. Links courses can be frustrating for "target" golfers who enjoy the certainty of precision laser measured distance and expect well-struck shots to drop and stop on green or fairway as just reward for skillful play. Yet, if you understand "Links" golf, you realize it is the pinnacle of creative play. Target golf on a parkland course is clinical science. The "Links" require imaginative artistry.

To embrace and enjoy the links experience several key insights are beneficial. First, recognize you cannot overpower the wind. To the contrary, forceful swings are often thrown off balance and high spin shots rise in the air like a helium-filled balloon. Maintain your balance. Consider playing a low spin ball. Choose a lower lofted club, make a smooth gentle swing, and seek solid contact rather than power.

Second, consider the "roll" of the course. Ignore the contours of the course and your ball may land on the green or fairway and roll into a hazard or trap. Small bunkers are often encircled by gradually sloping terrain 20 yards or more from the sand that "collect" an apparently safe shot into the bunker. It may seem like bad luck, more often it is just a careless or unobservant shot.

Study the contours and make them your friend. Sometimes it is best to play away from the hole and let the contour of the land "roll" your ball to the hole. Frequently it is preferable to be below the hole and chipping, than above the hole and putting. Links challenge you to anticipate consequences. Visualize and play a shot that makes the following shot easiest. The required shot is not always obvious at first glance.

Third, do not be constrained by "should" shots or scores. The effects of wind and course contours can dramatically affect the flight and roll of your ball. You may play a 150-yard shot with anything from a wedge to fairway wood. You may reach 550-yard par fives in two. You may take two full shots to reach a 200-yard par 3. You may putt from 30 yards off the green. On the "links", your "normal" distance is constantly changing. Such conditions offer stern test of judgment and patience.

Links courses require creative thinking and balanced technique. You will experience both good and bad bounces. A links will play differently every time you tee up. A great round on a links is a masterful golfing achievement. Accept the unique challenge of every shot. 2010 is the year of the "Links", the 150th British Open at St Andrews, U. S. Open at Pebble Beach, and PGA at Whistling Straits (a design tribute to Irish links). So, join the "Links" experience closer to home at one of the fine Eastern Shore courses!

GOLF FITNESS

In past articles we talked about the muscles that are important to a better golf swing. Now let's look at the most important muscles of all, the abdominals. These muscles are responsible for trunk rotation, especially the obliques and the transversus abdominis. These muscles also brace the spine, thus protecting it from injury. The rectus ("six-pack") is of lesser importance. While all golfers use these muscles to some degree, toning them will boost performance. Of these muscles, the transversus is arguably the most important. This muscle, located beneath the obliques, runs like a band across the abdomen and, when tensed, compresses the abdominal contents ("innards") which, in turn provides stability to your pelvis and spine. By strengthening this muscle, you provide support and balance to your posture and swing. If you cannot keep your body straight at ball contact, your swing and game will suffer. Fortunately, it is relatively easy to strengthen. If you have tried Pilates, which I have been suggesting in past articles, you probably already have a strong transversus, since it is a major component of the "core" muscles. If not, learn to do and practice the "cat stretch", a yoga move that will quickly get you going in the right direction. It is well demonstrated by going to www.youtube.com and searching for "cat stretch". You can also go to your local gym and learn it from the Yoga/Pilates teacher.

Basically, it is a breathing exercise in which, on inhale, you try to move your belly button closer to your spine. As it strengthens you will find the longer you can bring your belly button up and in and the longer you can hold it, the better stability and range of motion the muscle can impart.

The next time you watch golfers, realize that, while strong arms and "six packs" are helpful, it is really muscles like the transversus that makes a difference in the swing.

WELCOME TO SUMMER :)

Let's go to the Beach!!!

How to play the dreaded greenside bunker shot...terrifying, misunderstood, and way over explained.

T.V. announcer, "open your stance, open your clubface way open, pick the club up outside the line with your hands, then cut across the ball hitting 1" behind the ball and taking a nice divot of sand."

If the average player tried this, they would most likely give up after 3 or 4 attempts. This method is way too complicated, way too advanced, and way too unnecessary for the average golfer and the average bunker shot. Let's simplify.

It's the summer time, and life is simple.

First

Let's approach this shot with the same non-terrified procedure as hitting a shot off the grass. Use a sand wedge (cause this is what it's for), and set up in good posture standing square to your target with the clubface nice and square (aimed at the target) as well. Dig your feet into the sand slightly so that you look like you know what you're doing. Now you're ready!!!

Second

Let's NOT make an "up and out cut across the ball swing", instead let's make a good basic and full golf swing. In other words...make a full back swing, followed by a full forward swing, followed by a full balance finish...no different then if you were hitting a full shot off of the grass.

Third

Let's NOT hit the ball first killing everyone in the crowd on the other side of the green, let's miss the ball (most people can do this even if not on purpose), and simply take a shallow divot of sand out from under the ball. I don't care if you hit 2 or 6 inches behind the ball, just take a divot.

Fourth

Let's NOT stop there, let's continue our forward swing all the way to a full finish. The sand is heavy (at least heavier than air), and will try to stop the club...DO NOT LET IT...YOU MUST RESIST. Swing through the sand to a full finish (did I say that already?). The sand and the ball will fly out with the greatest of ease to land safely on the green so that you can attempt to miss your next three putts (see previous article on putting).

I have two golden rules to greenside bunker play...

Take a good full golf swing. Take a divot of sand.

Do this, and I guarantee the ball will leave the bunker forever and live happily ever after...the end!
